

TRACE CENTER
UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN-MADISON

Trace R&D Center University of Wisconsin-Madison

Research - Participants Wanted

The Trace Center is a research and development center at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. We are looking for individuals who have movement disorders of their arms or hands to participate in a study for evaluating usability of information technology such as hand held computers and public kiosks. You will be asked to visit Trace on two different occasions. You will be compensated at a rate of $15.00/hour and will receive a $50 bonus for completing both sessions. You will also be paid for transportation costs incurred traveling to or from study location (bus fare, car mileage at 33 cents per mile or local taxi service if required). Travel time is included in the hourly rate.

If you are interested and would like to help us in making information technology devices that are more accessible, please contact us at:

608-263-3827 or send email to meyer@trace.wisc.edu